We are seeking strong candidates who have completed an adult rheumatology residency to join Canada's largest academic rheumatology centre to pursue a research fellowship dedicated to rheumatoid arthritis (RA). Our goal is to provide a training experience in RA with focus on clinical, translational or health services research through a combination of didactic study, individual mentorship, design, conduct, and analysis of research projects. Preference will be given to those who wish to pursue graduate training in methodology through a Master's or PhD degree and later work in an academic institution as a clinician-investigator or clinician-scientist.
