

Dr. Katie Lundon is an assistant professor, Department of Medicine, Faculty of Medicine at the University of Toronto. She is the co-director of the Advanced Clinician Practitioner in Arthritis Care (ACPAC) Program which is an academic and clinical training program offered in arthritis/MSK care at the post licensure level. The ACPAC program is currently hosted by St. Michael's Hospital and the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, Canada, and is offered through the Department of Continuing Education and Professional Development, Faculty of Medicine, University of Toronto. Dr. Lundon has extensive experience in bringing stakeholders including the Ministry of Health, consumer groups, professional groups, and over ninety interdisciplinary faculty members together to bring this initiative to fruition. Current interests lie in advancing similar healthcare management streams to better utilize existing human health resources and thus contribute to improved access to care for patients living with chronic diseases.